The senator was replying to the attorney general's statement issued last Saturday, charging that Mr. Frelinghuysen was pleasing Germany by his official attitude. Mr. Palmer's nomination as attorney general was confirmed last week after a fight had been made for him by Mr. Frelinghuysen.

"More Prussian Than Prussia," "Mr. Palmer," said the New Jersey senator, "is pursuing the same methods as he has used before, shouting and shouting those who oppose his high-handed methods. He will not hesitate to use all the great power of his office to intimidate those who oppose him. He has learned from the German agents. He is more Prussian than the Prussians."

"I believe in Texas for Texans only and just as strongly do I believe that Texas should have the affairs of the state should be conducted," the governor said. Wharves And Warehouses In North Europe Overflowing With Foods, Asserts Hoover Food May Spoil as People Haven't Cash to Pay; Era of Speculation in U. S. and Elsewhere Declared Chief Cause of High Prices; U. S. Credits Needed to Save Europe and Provide Market for Our Supplies.

PARIS, France, Sept. 2.—A distressing era of speculation in foodstuffs in the United States and throughout the world's primary food markets is largely responsible for high food costs, in the opinion of Herbert Hoover, chairman of the inter-allied relief organization, who, on the eve of his departure for the United States granted the Associated Press an interview Monday.

Wharves and warehouses in Northern European ports are overflowing with foodstuffs, and by merchants all over the world, Hoover said. These merchants, he declared, had "accumulated" on sales in Poland, Czechoslovakia, the Baltic states and Germany at high prices, but these states have only a depreciated local currency and many commodities in central and eastern Europe. This speculation was not due to any shortage of food, but to the long delay in the removal of the blockade until the peace treaty was signed at the end of an inquiry as to how food speculation could be checked in America, Hoover said.

"Palmer Has Right Case," Attorney general A. Mitchell Palmer is on the right track when he endeavors to break down speculation. The situation is one that may well cause anxiety also from another point of view.
